

YOUR SMILE could save a life.

Remember:

- » Our visitors have come to help save a life by adopting an animal.
- » Some of them may have been afraid to come—but they came anyway.
- » Some of them may not be sure about adopting—but they're willing to give it a try.
- » Some of them may not know what to expect—and you may be the one person with the chance to shape their opinion.
- » Everyone who works in animal welfare knows that people can do bad things. But people are also the key to the solution. They are our adopters, donors, and supporters. They can take our message to their friends and families. They can help us save more lives.

So if you're having a bad day, take five, calm down, and remember:

We can't do this alone. And if you welcome people with a smile and a helpful, open attitude, we won't have to.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES